New Hampton Roads Web site provides convenient home & garden quotes

NORFOLK -- Ever had a hard time gathering job estimates for a home repair or improvement project? Navy Commander Michael Crockett of Norfolk has lived through it many times and decided to do something about it.

Crockett launched a new Web site today called "JobSiteJoe.com," www.JobSiteJoe.com, which brings Hampton Roads homeowners and local Home and Garden (H&G) professionals together for quick and easy job quotes.

Crockett, stationed at United States Northern Command's Joint Task Force Civil Support at Fort Monroe, says the ever-expanding and popular Internet helps couples meet, job hunters find employers, and mortgage companies find people in search of loans, so why not have a Web site that helps people take care of their most valuable possession, their homes, while simultaneously helping small business professionals reach new customers.

The site's primary feature is the free "Get Estimates" section where homeowners, can solicit home and garden job estimates, and small businesses looking for new customers or facing empty schedule blocks can respond.

Other JobSiteJoe.com free features include:

- "Ask a Joe" technical question bulletin board
- Current H & G news stories for both homeowners and businesses
- Listings of Hampton Roads homes for sale
- H & G classified ads
- Good Samaritans section for Web site visitors interested in learning about area charities
